

When should I request assistance with my research/activity?

- I need to ship items internationally.
- I need to travel internationally.
- I want to collaborate with a researcher or an institution from outside the United States.
- The sponsor has requested that my research results be kept proprietary or has requested to review my results prior to publication.
- The sponsor has requested that only US persons work on the project, or, has requested the name and citizenship status of my researchers.
- I have received or need to receive export-controlled data from a sponsor, collaborator, or vendor.
- I have received or plan to receive hardware that the sponsor or vendor has designated “ITAR” controlled (e.g., military use or application).
- I have invented a new technology having an obvious military application.
- The sponsor insists that the research project (or any aspect thereof) be subject to a confidentiality agreement.
